Thinking Out Loud

(By H. M. L.)

A Piedmont society couple are being divorced because of incompatability. The fair young matron asks alimony of one dollar per month. A token alimony, as it were, something to remind her former husband in the years to come of herself, when, perhaps he will have solaced himself with another fair charmer, more compatable. It somehow reminds us of the Russian marriage ceremony of the old Czarist days, when during the nuptials, the priest tendered the groom a knout which he laid over the shoulders of his kneeling bride. In the case of gentlefolk it was a whip made of white satin ribbons, merely a token whipping to indicate the male's mastery in the new conjugal relationship. Among the peasantry the whip was sometimes of rawhide and was laid on with a will to start the marriage off auspiciously. The token alimony and the token whip; there is a parallelism there.

William Allen White, sage of Emporia and the Republican party, declares that only by returning to the ideal of the First Roosevelt, "social and industrial justice," will the Republican party ever be able to regain its former eminence. This is an ideal that belongs to no political party. It is as old as the human race. Every party platform, incorporates it. Every President of the United States has voiced this ideal in one form or another. No, it won't do. The need has been, and is today, for a man or group of men to realize that ideal in some practical form or system. The NRA is one plan for affecting industrial justice. It is a faltering step in the right direction and someday we may reach the goal.

Social justice is another matter. All the rules for affecting social justice are found in the New Testament. But as yet they do not prevail. A Negro was hanged the other day while his appeal to the State Supreme Court was pending. Unquestionably the Negro was guilty but he was denied his right under the State Constitution. Two kidnapers and murderers were hanged by a mob in San Jose without trial. They were guilty of course. But they were denied their right to trial by jury. The story of social injustice in this country is long, and can be illustrated every day in the year by the reports published in almost any newspaper.

In some respects England is far ahead of us in accomplishing social justice. Old age pensions, employment insurance, equal application of all laws to rich and poor — these ideals have been realized in England. Why has England outstripped us? Is it because we have admitted too much base metal to our melting pot? But there never was, in the history of the world, a more mixed race than the English. Or is it a matter of seasoning for a few hundred years? Must we wait for a century or two for a more complete stability? These things are purely in the realm of speculation.

In the meantime and immediately, where seventeen years ago we engaged in a war to save the world for democracy, today we are engaged under President Roosevelt in a war to save the United States for democracy. It is a long battle line from the Atlantic to the Pacific and while there is time let us keep the battle to the ballot box, where issues may be compromised and ideals saved.

Huey Long's "share the wealth" plan, Townsend's old age pension project, Upton Sinclair's epic, college student associations, that strike against war, the Communist party, these are all hatched from the same setting of eggs, namely social injustice. Holding noses, shutting eyes, and battening ears will not avail. X-ray the body politic, find where the cancer is, and deal with it as scientifically as the good Lord gives us the skill. We may not be able to go all the way with Roosevelt, but let us go as far as we can, and then choose someone else to lead us further.

Conservative elements in labor circles sometimes do win. In a conclave of maritime workers in Seattle, it is noteworthy, that Harry Bridges, Communist leader in the San Francisco stevedores strike, was shouldered aside in his candidacy for temporary chairman, and a conservative, E. B. O'Grady of San Francisco, elected. Bridges may only be in temporary eclipse, but he cannot be popular, since the San Francisco strike failed of its great objective, namely, reducing San Francisco government to a form of communism.

The State Senate refuses to confirm Governor Merriam's appointment of former Mayor John C. Porter of Los Angeles, to the state personnel board. Reasons: Mayor Porter, during prohibition high tide, refused to drink a toast in wine while attending a junket convention of American mayors in Paris, and also forgot to welcome personally Franklin Roosevelt to Los Angeles, when as presidential candidate, the New Dealer made his tour of this state. The Senate quite properly decided that a broader-gauged man was necessary for the job.

Employment Increases in Nevada County Mines

Alleghany Prepares for Big May 11 Fete

An all-time record of attendance for a mountain town festival is the goal the people of Alleghany are steadily working toward. On May 11 they will hold an all-day, all-night celebration and they declare that a district which has given the world such a group of rich mines as that headed by the Sixteen-to-One is bound to attract some hundreds of sight seers and celebrants.

Tom Davies, Sierra County supervisor for the Alleghany district, is working persistently on the roads and says they will be in shape to transport the crowds on Saturday, May 11.

Rehearsals of the comedy "Gay" are going forward every evening and some of the characters are beginning to acquire a professional facility in handling their roles. Auto dealers of both Nevada City and Grass Valley have signified their desire to exhibit their 1935 models at the big auto show. Picnicking, sight seeing and other entertainment will occupy the day. In the evening will be given the comedy and following that the big dance which will conclude the festival. A Sacramento orchestra, famed even beyond the borders of California will provide the music for this night carnival of dancing and entertainment.

Mrs. Lyda Talbot is in charge of the musical program. Rev. Charles Washburn will give the address.

The airport grounds are in good shape for the occasion. The Boy Scouts will direct the traffic and parking of cars. The airport gate will be open and cars can drive into the field.

CITY COUNCIL DISCUSSES FREE MAIL DELIVERY

The city council meeting last evening discussed the project of obtaining free mail delivery in Nevada City .Mayor Seamon said he was opposed to this innovation but other councilmen apparently favored it. Councilman Hall recommended that the city ask an inspector from the San Francisco office to come here and indicate what would have to be done with reference to side walks. While it is not necessary to install cement side walks, it was stated, it would be necessary to place side walks in good repair for the use of mail carriers.

It was proposed to fence in the municipal park so that those who use it for recreational purposes, will not stray into adjoining private property. It was suggested that in building these line fences the property owners would be willing to pay their half of the expense.

The application of Verle Gray for the position of swimming instructor and life guard at the municipal pool was received. Gray is former resident of Nevada City. The application of Addison Janes, who held this position last summer, was also received. No decision was reached.

The council decided to erect a rock bin at the Hoge mine dump for which they will receive the use of a county rock breaker. This is an arrangement made with Supervisor Cary Arbogast.

SIDE SHOW FEATURE FOR PET EXHIBITION

The Pet Show at the Washington Grammar school that will be held one day early in May, will have a side show. And what a side show! Super-intelligent animals will be exhibited. The promoters are, and possibly the barkers for this side show will be, Clark McGinnis and Joe O'Neill. They are in the hills now daily setting traps for super-intellectuals of the animal kingdom, and are having an extremely tough time capturing any of them because these wary beasts do use their super brains to keep out of traps. It is even hinted that if none of the super sort are captured, the two promoters will substitute a few of the dull animals and try to train them intellectually between now and the time the side show opens. Whatever happens, this side show of super-pets is bound to be interesting and the boys and girls of Washington school are all agog.

N. I. D. VS P. G. E. SUIT RECESSES FOR THREE DAYS

A three day recess was declared by Judge George H. Thompson of El Dorado yesterday in the protracted trial of the Nevada Irrigation District against the Pacific Gas & Electric company. The trial will be resumed Monday.

A. L. Wisker, organizer and first manager of the irrigation district was occasionally relieved from his long stay on the witness stand by Col. F. Emerson Hoare, his engineer advisor during the formative years of the district. Hoare's testimony was generally corroborative of Wisker, dealing chiefly with technical matters concerning the construction of canals, watershed capacities, and various plans contemplated by the N. I. D. for utilizing water for power services, which the N. I. D. proposed at the time to develop, over and above its requirements of 108,000 acre feet which it was to deliver under contract with the P. G. & E. to Lake Spaulding.

Wisker on Wednesday was particularly examined by Defense Attorney Dunn on the reliability of the

ROAD ACROSS PIONEER PARK SOON COMPLETED

The new road which crosses Pioneer park between Park avenue and Nimrod street is now ready for the finishing touches. The new community house which is building adjacent to this road on Nimrod street is rapidly progressing. The foundations are in and the first flooring has been laid. Two lavatories with cement floors are in process of construction. The new community house will have a big fireplace, the foundation for which has been laid.

Historic Armory Hall Is Being Modernized

As their contribution to civic betterment, the Nevada City Fire Department, under the direction of Louis Kopp, has started a series of improvements on Armory Hall. The hall is now in the hands of workmen who are painting, remodeling, and repairing to such an extent, the old hall will soon be unrecognizable. A ventilating system is being installed, the floor will be re-surfaced, and the whole interior will be decorated in a modernistic manner which will be sure to find favor with local people.

The color scheme for the interior will be green and cream with light brown trimmings. The exterior will be dark cream and brown, with stain on the sides. One thousand dollars or more is being expended at this time by the civic-minded fire department, wso have long hesired to put the hall in shape.

Further improvements are planned as soon as finances permit and among them will be a new heating system for the hall.

Work Payroll Tops $305,000 per Month

Mining employment reached a new peak in Nevada County during the past month despite severe snow and rain storms. A canvas of the mining companies listed below reveals 2183 men employed with a payroll of approximately $305,000 per month. It will be noted that the Murchie, Bullion and one or two others of the larger properties have stepped up the number of men employed. The Frederic mine (formerly the Hussey) has resumed operations with a crew of ten men .

Among realty brokers it is reported that there is a persistent inquiry for mining properties that do not require large amounts of money to reopen or develop. It is said that were a mining engineer, competent to estimate values in quartz and in gravel properties, to establish his offices here and list the properties that are offered for sale or lease, he could probably do a good business in brokerage this spring and summer.

ALTA VIEW GRAVEL MINE

Excellent returns are reported from test runs of gravel from a tunnel and shaft on the Alta View mine located six miles northeast of Camptonville. A 300 foot tunnel is being driven along the west rim of the channel. Many surface improvements are contemplated in the near future. The work is being done under lease from Dr. Clyde Wayland of San Jose, owner of the property. Henry Clay is in charge of the work.

SPENCEVILLE MINE

Great progress has been made in reconditioning and putting in shape the Spenceville mine property west of Nevada City under Superintendent Louis Hind. It is understood work is about to start on treating the ore by the cyanide process. The ore is an old sulphide dump of about 80,000 tons which has been burned and leached. From reports gold recovery will be about $3.00 per ton.

EAGLE BIRD MINE

A flume was washed out at the Eagle Bird mine above Washington during the last heavy storm and was soon repaired. It took about two days to pump out the water in the 1200 foot shaft which had risen several hundred feet while the flume was out. Walter Burrows is caretaker at the mine.

DEER CREEK UNION CONS.

Four men have been returned to work in the Deer Creek Union mine. The rest of the crew will be placed at work as soon as the water from the recent heavy storm has drained off. Sacramento and Folsom capital is opening the property.

ANCHO-ERIE MINE

The breaking of the cam shaft at the Ancho-Erie Mine shortly after the first of the year has held up work. The heavy snow from Graniteville to the mine has prevented getting the heavy piece of machinery replacement into the property. Mr. Kingman is superintendent.

GOLDEN CENTER MINE

The Golden Center mine in the heart of Grass Valley and owned by Cooley Butler is reopening the Peabody shaft on the property. The old 225 foot shaft is being cleaned out.

MOUNTAIN VIEW MINE

Plans are to reopen the Mountain View mine near Washington as soon as the weather settles. Mr. White is superintendent. Five men were employed there last fall in reconditioning the property.

Death—By Mistake

(Contributed)

That justice can be flouted because the state's legal machinery fails to function properly, and that tragedy can result, was brought strikingly home to Californians the other day in one cryptic headline—hanged by mistake!

Yet how many of us felt pity for this victim of an error, stopped to realize that in many instances laxity of legal machinery, or courts, is responsible for the slaughter—by mistake—of the men, women, and children who fall prey to the reckless automobile driver?

This is not very pleasant language. But there is no use mincing words.

The nineteen-year-old lad who was hanged without appeal because a county clerk's office failed to forward a notice to San Quentin, may or may not have been guilty. But that is beside the point. The legal machinery failed, and death was the result.

Every day, somewhere in California, courts fail to crack down hard enough on the maniac whose speed kills—by mistake—people with not even an accusation of guilt hanging over them.

Chief of Highway Patrol Raymond E. Cato has said: "It's easy enough for our men to bring traffic violators into court, but if the judge lets them off our efforts to make the highways safe are nullified."

It is not as though there were nothing to be done about it. There is. The voters can remedy the situation through their power at the polls. With it behind them, they can demand that judges crack down where cracking down is needed.

If we make a point of using this power, we will be helping to wipe out an even stronger indictment of California justice than: "convicted negro hanged by mistake." And that is: "more than 2500 utterly innocent California citizens annually slaughtered—by mistake."

The Harbor Holdup

(Contributed)

Most of us have suspected all along that certain powerful interests in San Francisco had the idea that their city practically owned and controlled the entire state of California. Just as an idea in their own minds, it didn't bother anybody very much.

But now the city is actually attempting to take over, without paying for it, property belonging to the state, property in which all the taxpayers of the state have invested millions of their own good money. That is the great harbor of San Francisco Bay.

Senate Bill 17, now pending in Sacramento, is the measure seeking to accomplish this. It contains the very "generous" proposal on the part of the city to pay off, by way of compensation, the few remaining harbor bonds.

The most serious part about it is not, however, that the city is getting something for nothing from the state. That would be only the beginning. What would happen if the self-styled "Big City" politicians got control of this great natural harbor challenges even the most fertile imagination.

If any one questions the fact that log-rolling, pork-barrel, racketeering politics play no small part in San Francisco's government, let him look at the mess the city council has made of plans for the world's fair to celebrate the completion of the bay bridges. For months they have wrangled over a location, because every other member of the group is battling to get the plum for a different selfish interest.

That is just a hint of the kind of control San Francisco might be expected to exercise over the state's harbor if it succeeds in pushing through this palpably unfair measure. Is ninety-nine percent of California going to stand idly by while one percent puts this across?

Dim Trails

The tall trees tell the story
To the bracken at their feet,
And the radiant flowers of springtime
Once again the tale repeat;
And beneath the snow clad mountains,
Where surging rivers gleam,
In memory haunted canyons,
The dim trails lie adream.

In rugged time scarred gulches,
Where amid the groves of pine,
Little cabins used to cluster
In the days of forty nine,
Rays from starland gem the shadows,
Spectral camp fires seem to glow,
And the winds of even wander
Over trails made long ago.

All the forest seems to listen
For young voices gay and sweet,
And the wild flowers throng the pathways
Made by eager, restless feet;
Lonely camp and mine are keeping
Memories of our pioneers,
And the tales of their achievements
Thrill the empty, waiting years.

Far away the blue bay beckons
And the sunlit trails are wide
Where the city of the valley
Reigns in beauty and in pride;
But the brooding shadows deepen
Over canyon, hill and stream,
And the forest voices falter
Where the dim trails lie adream.

MINING NEWS

by the Gold Exploration company has 30 men employed blocking out the gravel for future work. The large new mill amalgamates without any other process. The company still uses the old mill. Milton Paine is superintendent.

DEPOT HILL GRAVEL PROPERTY

Five men are employed at Depot Hill gravel mine which is owned by Fred Joubert. The big monitor is tearing down many yards of the high banks each day. The Indian Hill gravel mine, under lease to Mr. Joubert, has five men employed and the monitor is making satisfactory progress. Both properties are near Camptonville.

FREDERIC MINE

In an interview with Superintendent Gordon M. Bettles of Nevada City it was learned the new company which has taken over the Hussey mine in Willow Valley, is installing a new 700 foot displacing compressor and a 100 horsepower motor. Work started this week in sinking the shaft an additional 225 feet, which will give a depth of around 450 feet. Ten men are employed at the property.

BULLION MINE

The suit over apex rights between the Bullion and Empire mines, south of Grass Valley, is set for May 6. Meanwhile crews are taking out ore on the 300 foot, 800 foot and north drift of the 1500 foot levels. While ore on the upper levels is of good value that on the 1500 level is quite rich. Surveys are being made for the suit by both companies in vertical shafts, drifting on outcrops, and veins close to the surface.

Four men are employed under L. W. Cheney, superintendent at the Gracey-Glencoe mine in stoping ore. The newly installed four cell flotation unit is being tried out on test runs of ore.

IDAHO-MARYLAND MINE

Leo J. Gibbons, representative of the Ruddock and McCaffrey Machinery company of Los Angeles, has brought the combined power shovel, drag line, clam shell and crane, machine to the Idaho-Maryland mine property and the test run was made Wednesday. It will be used to excavate some reservoirs, work on part of the air port at the Loma Rica ranch, and then be used in the Idaho-Maryland lumber yard to unload lumber from the narrow gauge railroad. The crane lift has a capacity of 14 to 18 tons and a working weight of 36 tons. It is mounted on a caterpillar that will climb a 36 percent grade. While being brought in from Colfax recently the machine fell off the car and was damaged to some extent, but proceeded under its own power to the mine property. The circular shaft at the Idaho-Maryland property is now down about 400 feet under supervision of J. B. Newsom. Eight men are employed on this latter work. Errol MacBoyle is general manager of the company.

PENNSYLVANIA MINE

The newly formed Aladdin Gold Mining company, Ltd., recently acquired the Sweet Vengeance mine in Brown's Valyey which is near the Pennsylvania mine and have sampled it to the 200 foot level. Ore assays $16 to the ton and does not include a high grade seam of ore on the hanging wall. Plans are to unwater to the 350 foot level and drift both ways on the vein. The Pennsylvania mine which was taken over by the same company had had considerable work done. This consists of a 700 foot shaft, on the Pennsylvania vein, a drift of 500 feet and a 900 foot winze on the Bulldog vein. The mine is electrically equipped and employs eighteen men. C. N. Miller and associates of San Francisco are interested in the property.

EMPRESS MINE

The original mill of the Empress mine in the Newtown section west of Nevada City, has been dismantled. The 75 ton ball mill of the old plant is to be used in conjunction with the Harding mill to increase the volume of treated ore from 175 tons to 225 tons per day. It will regrind the coarse slimes after being worked in the classifier and will save a return of the larger materials to the larger mill. E. C. Jacobs is superintendent.

SCHROEDER MINE

The Schroeder and Forlorn Hope properties on Deer Creek, west of Nevada City, are being worked by the Cooley Butler interests who are also operating the Golden Center and other properties in the Grass Valley area. There are several test shafts on the Deer Creek properties less than 100 feet deep. Ore in a 1,000 foot tunnel on a vein that averages 35 feet opens up thousands of tons of low grade ore. A ball mill has been completed on the property and all ore is being treated there. A flotation system, is to be installed. A large water wheel used in former mine operations will also be used in the present work. A 500-foot cross cut is being run in the Forlorn Hope by contractors. There is a 500-foot tunnel on the property. All ore mined will be taken by tram to a conveyor which will carry it to the mill at the Schroeder.

ICARD RANCH

Drifting is proceeding in different directions on the 110 foot level of the Abe Lincoln shaft on the Icard Ranch west of Grass Valley. A new ledge of pinkish ore has been cut in the west ledge. The property is under the management of Mrs. J. I. Kelly, and H. L. Henderson is foreman. George Icard is expected from the Philippine Islands sometime this month. When he arrives a definite program will be determined.

MINERS OF MURCHIE GIVEN SAFETY TRAINING

Alex G. Thompson of the safety division of the United States Bureau of mines, is giving a fifteen-hour course in safety instruction to the Murchie miners. The course is being given in the Elks club rooms and is attended by all miners of the Murchie. The night shift receives its instruction from 2 till 4 o'clock in the afternoon, and the day shift from 7 to 9 o'clock in the evening. Next week a course of instruction will be given to the miners at the Ziebright. Last week miners of the Newtown properties in Grass Valley were given their training.

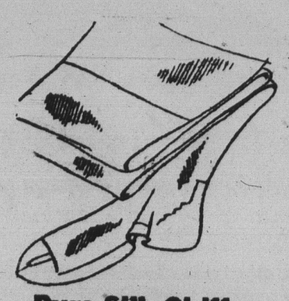

George, Gus and Bertha Wasley, all of whose tonsils were removed last week are recovering normally. The operations were performed by Dr. H. N. March.

FRIENDLY SERVICE
The friendly spirit of helpfulness, a reminder of the village church and neighborly calls, is recalled by those who have called upon Holmes Funeral Home when the services of a funeral director were needed. Yet in spite of this added attention to details which make Holmes' funerals so much finer, there is no extra charge. Holmes include all services—the use of motor equipment and the chapel. They are within the reach of the most modest budgets.

FRENCH CORRAL, April 14.—Few people in this country know that the jewelers' "carat" had its origin in a lowly bean, the fruit of an exotic tree which is native to southern Abyssinia, on the east coast of Africa. The tree is known as the kuara or sun-tree. When in blossom its fruit and flowers are a beautiful red coral color. The fruit, a large red bean called "carat", has a black spot on the side and hands from the branch in a spherical pod of a pithy fibrous substance as tough and hard as the bark itself. As these beans are uniform in size and weight, the natives employed them as a basis in weighing gold, and their use and popularity soon spread over the length and breadth of Africa, being readily accepted by both white and black traders.

In due course it passed from the dark continent to India where the crafty native goldsmiths, who were without a standard, eagerly adopted the carat as a medium and likewise applied it to the grading of all precious stones. This the diamond and gold standard in terms of carats eventually became universal and its original name remains.

Edward Alery, 85, a retired farmer of Merrill, Wisconsin, received a letter from his mother, Mrs. Marie Alery, 106 years old, of St. Edwards, Canada, recently in which she adjured him to be "a good boy."

Seven large wolves came rushing toward a sentry attached to the barracks at Fotch (Belgrade) but he was less frightened of them than he was of his superior officers. Afraid that he would be reprimanded for wasting ammunition, he dared not fire at them. So he charged them with his bayonet and they fled.

Allerd Shall, 35, of Montreal, gave a novel excuse for not answering questions in court when he was arrested on a charge of breaking a plate glass window.

"I can't answer anything because I am a fool," he told the judge. "The police said so." He was ordered held for trial.

And while Montreal seems to be uppermost in my mind today I will take time out to tell you that next summer Montrealers will set their watches to the booming of the largest clock in the world—a clock with a dial seven times larger than the dial on London's Big Ben. It will be visible ten miles away at night. It will have three dials, and the minute marks will be 3.14 feet apart.

Marriage may be full of problems, heartaches and surprises, these hectic days; but you must admit that there are very few dull moments in it.

FRANK FENTON HAS FINE TRIP TO ALASKA

Miss Mamie Fenton received a letter from her brother, Frank Fenton who sailed from Seattle on April 30 for Fairbanks, Alaska to assume the seasons work for the F. & E. Co., which owns a large gold bearing gravel property near there. Mr. Fenton has been mining in Alaska for 35 years and is one of the few hydraulic miners left. He sailed on the S. S. Alaska and said they were in the Gulf of Alaska where it was as calm as a lake and the sun shone brightly. It was the best trip he had ever made. On the boat he met two men from Haywards and Oroville, one he had known in Dawson in 1909. Mr. Fenton stated it was good to meet men from California.

When Mr. Fenton first went to Alaska his brothers, Ben of Berkeley and Will of Nevada City, were with him and spent several seasons there operating gravel properties. Frank Fenton is a native of French Corral and visited his sister, Miss Mamie Fenton in Nevada City February 14 of last year.

LEGISLATIVE LETTER

by Graham Berry

WNU Service

Realizing that the art of legislation is long and time is fleeting, the Legislature finally woke up to the fact that the session was half over and that nothing worth writing home about had been accomplished. Floods of bills have been descending on political heads for three months, with apparently little effect.

But when a real flood hit the Capitol—water even inundating the governor's office—the 120 men and women representing the people's choice woke up and found that spring was here and that the legislature was in session.

During the first few days of voting activity, the One-hundred Twenty fumbled around with important legislation. They showed themselves hard to please, thumbing down severals bills.

Laughlin's bill, which would impose a half-cent tax on every foot of film produced, was laid gently on the table by the assembly revenue and taxation committee.

The assembly judiciary committee changed the formula of heart balm ointment when it approved Assemblyman Richie's bill prohibiting breach of promise suits unless both parties had signed a formal contract. If this bill is passed, it will take the gold out of the ointment, leaving only tears.

Meanwhile the senate judiciary committee voted 6 to 5 on Senator Culbert Olson's plan to put the state into the liquor business.

Claiming the state trespass laws were creating feudalism, overlords and discontented citizens, Senator Thomas Scollan pled in vain before the senate committee on revision of criminal law and procedure to have the laws made less drastic.

Assemblyman C. C. Cottrell thought he had a bill which would aid police in stamping out crime. The Assembly, however, proceeded to war-dance on his measure, stamping it into oblivion, 27 to 42.

A bill making a college professor liable to lose his job if caught speeding has received its death warrant in the assembly education committee. Assemblyman Frank G. Martin sponsored the measure which would require an oath of allegiance to the U. S. government and its institutions. It would be mandatory for those taking the oath to support all laws as a "precept and example." It was thought that the measure was stressing patriotism a little too far.

Income Tax Certain

Tiring of disapproving these more or less minor issues, legislators turned their attention to big game and things began to happen.

The big game turned out to be the Epic income tax proposal, and the scene of the slaughter was the Assembly. No sooner had the Bourbon corpse been dragged from the scene, feet foremost, than the administration turned on the pressure for its income tax bill. The Epic $56,000,000 idea was so loathsome to the assemblymen that they welcomed Chatters' $28,000,000 income tax. In reality, the situation was just reversed. The Epic bill saved the Chatters measure.

It's good psychology to set a double dose of spinach before a small boy, telling him he must swallow it, then remove the dish and place a small helping before him. Anyhow, the Assembly swallowed the Merriam-backed proposal, 70 to 5.

This is the second feather in the governor's cap, the first being the Townsend issue. Success of the Chatters bill was the first test of his tax program and he has gained a very notable victory.

Contrary to the opinion of the crystal-gazers, the toughest sledding for the administration so far has been in the Senate. In the Assembly where the Republican majority hangs with a sword of Damocles security, plenty of trouble was expected.

Thus far the lower house has proved almost tractable. In the Senate, where the Republican bicep is supposed to have twice the girth as that of the Bourbons, Merriam's ideas have been given a black eye on more than one occasion. The Republican bicep seems to have a nervous twitch which pulls the arm up, bumping its owner in the eye. The affliction has been diagnosed as a slight touch of rugged individualism, a disorder which New Deal shots should have cured long ago.

Anyhow, senatorial brows have already arched unprepossessingly over the administration income tax bill. Just what the upper house plans to do is anybody's guess. It doesn't need any astrologist to predict, however, that the tax bill will be amended, signs seeming to indicate a lowering from one-third to one-fourth the Federal rate.

The state income tax must be ground through a lot more legislative machinery before it becomes a law, although it's in the cards that California will sport one before the session is over. If the Chatters bill passes without too much senatorial alteration, the tax will reach down to those with incomes of $1000, from which $8.67 will be extracted.

Since it has taken a little over two months to get any action on the first tax bill, Senator Walter Duval suddenly got a brainstorm, proposing a joint upper and lower house committee to work out a complete tax program, thus making it easy for both bodies to concoct more tax pills in less time. The Senate acquiesced to the idea, 34 to 2.

If the state government continues to be sick, it won't be because of a lack of pink pills. If approved, the new committee will, according to Duval, "provide a contact between the two houses and enable them to work out a tax program. The members of the committee will know what revenue bill it is possible to get through both houses."

Merriam's idea of paying for our depression as we go along, apparently is gaining ground at Sacramento. This idea is the opposite of Roosevelt's, who would make our prosperous times pay for our bad times.

Atop taxation's wailing wall is one little blue bird, singing a song of happiness. The bird is State Controller Ray E. Riley, who chirps that while the state debt is $22,178,945, the state income is increasing all the time. California collected $115,043,486.58 in taxes between July, 1934, and April, 1935, but only $91,775,876.60 for the same nine months the preceding year. Increased sales and liquor tax returns have caused this unlooked for increase.

Long Distance Kick

While Public Worry Number One (the increasing cost of government) continues to rip the lining out of the family pocketbook, Californians can be thankful that the first tax to successfully run the gauntlet at Sacramento is an asset, rather than a liability to the Family Fortune.

It is the ten-cent tax on oleomargarine made from foreign oils. California dairymen, of course, are behind this bill to the last milk-pail. It was thought that there would be no kicks when this bill was signed by the governor. The boys did not count on our neighbors, the Philippines, who consider passage of the bill a major detriment to their coconut oil business. In a cablegram, Acting Governor General Joseph K. Hayden declared the measure would cripple the purchasing power of the Filipinos, who are heavy buyers of California goods.

The bill of course will aid California farmers, and any measure aiding agriculture is being especially favored in the State Legislature. On this issue the administration is paralleling the New Deal, both state and national governments realizing that the well-being of the farmer is the keynote of recovery.

This economic precept is especially applicable to California, which, despite its widely advertised movie and oil wealth, is still an agricultural state. When the farmer is prosperous, good times are enjoyed by all; but when he's in the red, the whole state mourns, economically.

Business Regulation

The Legislature wants to pioneer in progressivism along business regulation lines. It's like the man who wants to invest his savings in a rising new stock. He is hesitant about making the plunge, fearing the ire of his conservative wife.

Instead of having just one spouse to worry about, the Legislature must consider a whole harem. And the harem has stuck up a go-slow sign—that is, all except Madame Epic.

Thus it looks as if the 30-hour week legislation will be placed gently into the discard. The Assembly has blocked the idea in a 45 to 28 test vote and a senate committee tabled bills covering various phases of the plan. The situation is being handled with kid gloves, however, final action having been postponed.

Observers believe the best labor can expect from Sacramento is a legislative memorial to Congress, urging adoption of a national 30-hour week. The fear of jeopardizing local business will keep California from pioneering in this field.

After a several-month investigation of the high cost of sickness, a senate committee has recommended a state health insurance act to aid persons with incomes of less than $3,000.

To meet costs, legislation has been submitted to set up a "health service fund," made up of employer and employe contributions.

Employers already maintaining health insurance would not have to contribute to the state fund, but would be required to contribute for health insurance funds for dependents of employes.

The neat sum of $100,000 has been spent in surveying the health needs of the state. All the money, incidentally, was contributed privately. An interesting fact brought out in the study was that California, the land of healthful sunshine and unusual weather, has a higher proportion of doctors to the population than any state in the nation.

Families with $1200 or less in yearly incomes were discovered to need more medical attention than those in the $5000 class—a good argument for health insurance.

The assembly oil industries committee has recommended that this state join into an oil and gas conservation pact with Texas, Oklahoma, Kansas and New Mexico, a sort of petroleum AAA marketing agreement pact. This move is loudly opposed by independent producers, who howl that the plan is a move by the major companies to put them out of business.

A deaf ear and an okeh by a five to one vote took the Minard bill, proposing that California join an interstate commission to carry out the act, out of committee and onto the Assembly floor. The threatened gas war in Los Angeles has pushed this pact.

Some sort of an inter-state agreement regulating oil prices has been needed for some time. Since other industries are banding together with the aid of the government, those proposing the inter-state pact believe the regulation of petroleum will greatly benefit California's greatest industry, petroleum production.

THREE NEV. CITY SCOUTS WILL GO TO WASHINGTON

Reservations have been sent in for three Boy Scouts from Nevada City to attend the big Scout Jamboree, to be held in Washington, D. C. during the latter part of August. The boys selected to go are: Eagle Scouts, Albert Pratti, and Warren Chapman, and first class scout Richard Marriott. Their alternates will be First Class Scouts Ray Wilde, Dick Tuttle, Clemens Organ, and Second Class Scout Johnny Muscardini, who must be a first class scout by July 1st to qualify for the trip. All scouts who go must be at least First Class rank by July first.

President Roosevelt has sent his personal invitation to the scouts to convene in Washington for a Jamboree, and at least 25,000 scouts from all parts of the United States are expected to be present. The boys will leave Nevada City on August 14 and return September 3, stopping a day in New York, Chicago, and Philadelphia. They will erect a tent city on the outskirts of Washington, D. C., where they will live for two weeks.

The boys from Nevada City will form part of a troop which is being made up of boys from the Tahoe area. The boys who have been selected have been judged to be outstanding scouts and possessing the true scout attitude. Plans are now being considered to raise money for the trip.

MEETING AT AUBURN

The largest and most enthusiastic annual meeting of the Tahoe Area Council was held last Tuesday at the Freeman Hotel, Auburn, to elect council officers for 1935. E. B. DeGroot, scout executive of Los Angeles, a 25 year Scouter, was the principle speaker. Five and ten year veteran ratings, Scout Leader training certificates and troop plaques were awarder.

The evenings program was opened by Scout Commissioner, W. H. Seaver leading, Scout fashion in the pledge of allegiance and the scout oath and laws. Reverend R. N. England, troop committeeman following with the invocation.

On the call of Council President K. D. Robinson, 101 Scouters, their wives and friends arose and introduced themselves disclosing that ten of the eleven communities having troops were represented. Mr. Robinson introduced Eagle Scout Sam Partridge as the Grand Senior Councilor of the Knights of Dunamis, a nation wide organization of Eagle Scouts, stating that the Tahoe Council was proud to have among its members the second ranking officer of this national section of the older Scout program.

BIRDSALL HONORED

All stood with bowed heads in silent honor in memory of E. S. Birdsall, a loyal scout worker for many years.

C. W. Brundage, Tahoe Council chairman of the Washington Scout Jamboree committee, gave a vivid picture of what this trip means to our Scouts and what they will see and visit.

Judge Raglan Tuttle formally presented 5-year service veteran ratings to scout master A. F. Carveth and assistant scoutmaster Cosma Sakamoto and ten year ratings to J. M. Stacker of Loomis, H. A. Snelling of Penryn, W. H. Seaver of Roseville and Dr. C. W. Chapman of Nevada City, stating that they were entitled to the honor and respect of every thinking citizen for the work and interest they had shown in boys.

BARTENDERS ACCUSED OF SELLING TO MINORS

Two bartenders, Arch Caplin and Bob Honburg, of the Nevada City Tavern are under arrest on charges of selling beer to minors.

Chief of Police Robson made the arrest. He alleges that he caught them in the act of making the sale. Arraigned before City Judge Miles D. Coughlin, their hearing was set for this morning at 10 o'clock. They are at liberty on $50 bail.

SUIT RECESSES

map submitted by the plaintiff. Wisker admitted that the map was drawn for other purposes, long before the present suit was contemplated, but stated that in so far as facts at issue were concerned, relative to watersheds, run-off, etc., in the Bowman district it was serving its purpose. Regarding methods of determining run-off he stated that the basis for such estimates were based upon geological maps, contour lines and government rainfall statistics for the points nearest the watershed. Computations regarding area and the volume of water falling are comparatively simple, Wisker implied.

F. H. Tibbets, engineer who constructed the dam and canals of the Nevada Irrigation district, was a witness yesterday for the district. His testimony was directed toward the plea of estoppal which Attorney Palmer for the plaintiff seeks to make. Letters were introduced showing that the Pacific Gas & Electric company had been keenly interested in the progress of work, dam construction and building of the conduit, and were well aware and expected that the water would be delivered, according to contract, beginning July 1, 1927. Engineers Steel, Galoway and Marquard, representing the Pacific Gas & Electric in July 1926, visited Bowman dam in company with Tibbets, and expressed surprise that it was expected to be completed by the next year. This was the testimony of Tibbets intending to show that at all times prior to July 1, 1927, during the constructive stage of the N. I. D. project, P. G. & E. officials were well aware of the progress made and expected to receive the water as stipulated in the contract.
